FROM THE CENTER SEAT

Our 8th annual “Goodbye Summer, Hello Fall” cookout was a lot of fun. Sixteen crew personnel feasted on Connie’s expertly prepared hot dogs and hamburgers. Other tasty treats included coleslaw, potato salad, Margaret’s vegetable salad, Randy’s macaroni and cheese, Josh’s deviled eggs, hot wings, and Todd’s baked beans. Of course there was the dessert consisting of brownies, lemon meringue pie, and ice cream!

After everyone had had their fill, most of the crew adjourned to the back room to watch Randy’s video from DragonCon, which showed the parade and the “I Dream of Jeannie” panel.

And so too do Connie and Russell!

“Hey! She has hardly any clothes on!”

There was also a drawing for a door prize donated by Lech – a gift card to Carrabba’s Italian Grill! The first name drawn was Lech but he excused himself from the drawing so another name was drawn. The lucky winner was none other than myself! There was a bit of grumbling from the assembled because Ariana was the one who drew the name.

Freddy displays the winning ticket for the door prize, a Carrabba’s Italian Grill gift card!”

A BIG Bajoran thanks to all the DaVinci personnel who attended our last cookout for the year. Not to worry however because we still have several more fun-filled adventures coming up!

For instance, just around the corner is the annual Columbus Science Fiction Convention and Toy Show at the Coca-Cola Space Science Center on 09 October beginning at 10:00 AM. A very special guest from the Star Wars universe will be attending.

Who is it you say? Well, more information on the show can be found in the Conventional Wisdom article below.

The annual Help the Hooch River clean up will be held on 16 October! This will be the 14th consecutive year that the DaVinci will participate in this worthwhile event! I really would like to see at least one crewmember for each year, so mark your calendars for this event. We will meet at Rigdon Park (off South Lumpkin Road) at 8:30 AM. Following the clean up we will adjourn to Golden Park where there will be a thank-you party for all the Help-the-Hooch volunteers. There will be free hotdogs, chips, and drinks available to all. In addition there will be games, activities, and displays. Come one, come all and help the Hooch! Hey, check out the photo below from our first clean up way back in 1997! Just who are those young folks! Is your picture there?

The DaVinci crew at our first Help-the-Hooch River clean up (18 October 1997)

Finally, on 30 October is our annual Halloween "party" in my garage! For you new folks what this party entails is passing out candy to the kids and hot cider and cookies to the adults. The folks in my neighborhood look forward to our stop. The garage is decorated and we have a bobbing for apples station, which is quite popular with kids, many of whom have never bobbed for apples before! We have lots of fun; so if you can make it, please drop by my house around 6:00 PM in your uniform, costume, or DaVinci apparel.

RADM Freddy Heller

EXECUTIVELY SPEAKING

A few months ago, I started a series on Trek-world vs. real world and will finish up with the final part of that comparison.

Cyber Security

At the movies: Whether they're virtual worlds or corporate networks, computers need to be restricted to trusted parties. For all the patches and firewalls in today's networks, cyber security most often comes down to not losing a laptop with unencrypted, sensitive data.

But Hollywood doesn't find purloined property to be sufficiently sensational and so often represents IT management in ways that make actual security experts guffaw. We don't just mean standard thrillers like Firewall (2006) and Die Hard 4 (2007); science-fiction movies have many cringe-inducing security moments as well. Most often, the fiction comes from the interfaces through which hacking occurs.

The most glaring and memorable instance of impossible interfaces may be in 1996's Independence Day, when the world's freedom was restored by an Apple PowerBook's ability to interface with and infect an alien operating system, promptly disabling the alien fleet's shields. Viruses are designed to exploit specific flaws in operating systems and applications; for Jeff Goldblum to have deciphered an alien computer's code and instantly developed a virus that could take it down was perhaps the greatest work of fiction IT managers will ever witness.

In reality: viruses and other malware are rarely so focused. When the Conficker worm spread throughout the Internet earlier this year, it did so indiscriminately, not targeting government or alien domains specifically.

Although malware can be used to send personal data back to a central computer, as the "spider-bug" did in Transformers (2007), it is unlikely to be able to distinguish a shipping invoice from a military schematic.

But so what? The more capable and precise a virus is, the better it suits a megalomaniac's goals -- just what Hollywood ordered.

Keep on Trekkin! See ya'll next time.

COMM Russell Ruhland

SCIENCE STATION

The schedules for the October astronomy night are as follows:

If you are interested in attending any of these nights, please give me a call and perhaps we can schedule an away mission.

ENS Lech Mazur

GAME MASTER

World of Warcraft (WoW) is a MMORPG. That stands for massively multiplayer online role playing game. What does this mean? It means that WoW is an online computer that you play with a large number of people. You connect to a server that also has several thousand people playing. At any given time you may only interact with a few of those people.

WoW has two different sides or factions, the Alliance and the Horde. Each faction has 5 different races. The Alliance consists of Humans, Night Elves, Dwarves, Gnomes, and with the BC expansion, Draenei. The Horde consists of Orcs, Tauren, The Forsaken, Trolls, and with the BC expansion, Blood Elves.

When you create your first character, you must choose what type server to play on. You decide if you wish to engage in player versus player (PvP) combat. This means that when you are not in the starter zones, you are subject to being attacked by members of the other faction.

If you wish to avoid this then you can go to a player versus environment (PvE) server. You also choose whether you want to role-play (RP) or not. There are separate servers set aside for RP. Please note, that you can only interact with other people of your faction that are on your server. So if you want to play with friends, you will have to choose a server that is acceptable to all parties. You can change servers and factions by paying Blizzard (creator of WoW) actual money.

The next important choice is what class to become. This is a VERY important choice, because once chosen, you CANNOT change your character to a different class. You must start over.

These are the available classes:

*Warrior: your normal fighter-type character.

*Paladin: a warrior/priest like the Templars.

*Death Knight: undead fighters of the Lich King that have turned against him.

*Hunter: a ranged damage dealer that can tame beasts to fight with them

*Shaman: a ranged/melee support player, that provides benefits through elemental totems

*Rogue: a close combat melee player specializing in various 'dirty tricks' such as backstabbing and poisons

*Druid: a 'jack-of-all-trades', the druid can take on several animal forms that provide different attack styles

*Priest: your basic healer type but does have offensive spell abilities.

*Mage: a low armor-high damage spellcaster.

*Warlock: a shaman or mage that has gone over to the 'Dark Side' and has offensive spells based on shadow magic and summons various demons to help fight.

Starting at level 10, you will acquire talent points. These points can be invested in three talent trees to give you character new abilities. I will be covering these talent trees in detail in future columns.

If you have any questions then email me (suvak@knology.net) or mention them the next time we get together and I will try to answer your questions in the next column.

DRAGONCON 2010

Every Labor Day weekend thousands flock to Atlanta on their annual trek to DragonCon. This year, it was estimated that at least 40,000 people manipulated themselves through elevators, panels, celebrity autographs, and major film/TV star presentations.

One of the big activities is always the DragonCon Parade on Saturday morning and this year they had to add an additional block to the parade route in order to accommodate the large crowd of spectators.

Early bird registration on Thursday was also opened all day and even so the line was stretched completely around the entire block at the Sheridan Hotel. Approximate waiting time thru the line was 3 hours. Diane and I took 1 hour to get thru disability services registration as well.

One could only wonder what will happen when this event gets so large that there is no room to handle all the people who attend. One thing I noticed in particular was that a lot more of the younger generation is attending as fandom continues to grow in areas such as Twilight and Anime.'

We were honored this year to have the cast of television's "I Dream of Jeannie" as guests. Barbara Eden, Larry Hagman, and Bill Daley gave the group a wonderful session and the room was filled to capacity.

Another guest of notoriety was Scott Bakula, Captain of the Enterprise NX-01. There were, of course, several guest panels from Star Trek this year which included LeVar Burton, Marina Sirtis, Brent Spiner, Denise Crosby, Avery Brooks, Rene Auberjonois, Armin Shimerman, and of course Garrett Wang who is the new Director of Trek programming at DragonCon, just to name a few, and we even got a visit from the "Q."

A new addition to the Trek programming this year was the Miss Star Trek Universe Pageant. About a dozen or so contestants entered as Seven of Nine, Klingons, Mirror Universe ladies, and Dax. An Orion Slave Girl who came all the way from Mexico to attend won the pageant. Garrett couldn't help but to do his George Takei impersonation of "Oh My" several times as the gorgeous ladies worked the judges on the stage. I was certainly impressed!

Actors J.G. Hertzler and Robert O'Reilly, otherwise known as General Martok and Chancellor Gowron, from Deep Space Nine, gave us a spectacular show on Sunday morning dressed in full Klingon costume and makeup as their Star Trek characters. The highlight of this event was the two of them doing a version of “Klingon Rap” which brought a loud applause from all.

My thanks to those other DaVinci members who attended this year: Randy, Sandy, and Lisa, with Shane as a guest visitor! If you have never had the opportunity to attend this event, please try to make it to Atlanta next year. I guarantee you will not be disappointed and once you have gone you will want to go every year.

On the left, Robert O’Reilly (Gowron) and on the right, J.G. Hertzler (Martok) are entertaining the crowd by doing the Klingon Rap!
